BREMEN TWP. TAXPAYERS DEMAND AUDIT

The annual Bremen township meeting held in the village hall in Tinley Park Tuesday afternoon was a red hot one. Supervisor Otto Zibell came in for much criticism in connection with the relief office scandal, but defended himself saying he could not help it if the employees of the office got into difficulties. He termed the articles in the Chicago papers about the relief office affair as highly colored and untrue and said he could start suit for libel against some of these papers, but would not.

The real fireworks started when a group of citizens demanded that a complete audit be made of all the township books for the past twenty years. After much discussing and arguments it was voted to appropriate $1,000 to defray the cost of the audit which is to be done by a public certified accountant, the work to be begun within the next 30 days it is understood.

R. I. Agent At Mokena 42 Years Goes To Morgan Pk.

John C. Nielsen, who has served as agent for the Rock Island in Mokena since 1898, is quitting his position to take up a better job for the same railroad at Morgan Park.

Mr. Nielsen first entered the employ of the Rock Island at Brainerd Junction, then went to Marquette and from there to Mokena, where he has put in 42 years of service. Mr. Nielsen always aimed to give the best of service to the public and was always a loyal employee of the railroad.

He also took interest in the civic affairs of his community and served as village trustee for a number of years, and also served a term as mayor. He was a member of the school board for a number of years.

During his years of residence in Mokena and through his work Mr. Nielsen made many friends in this and neighboring communities. It is with regret that we see Mr. Nielsen leave, but his host of friends wish him much success in his new work, which he takes over April 15. No announcement has been made as to who will be assigned to Mokena.

Hill Billy Wedding Coming to Tinley

"A Hillbilly Wedding" will be presented on Thursday and Friday evenings, April 18 and 19, at the school auditorium. The show is sponsored by the Tinley Park Band, directed by Miss Dolly Rothenberg, and promises to be one of the outstanding comedy treats of the year.

"A Hillbilly Wedding" will bring the country people of this entire community together with the business men of this city on the same stage and in the same show. The old songs will predominate, old friends will be brought together, and new friends will be made. It is an old-time barn dance and show, all rolled into one.

The plot of "A Hillbilly Wedding" concerns old Captain Henry of the Showboat Dixie Bell, who is coming home to be married after being away for thirty years. He is met at the levee by all of his old friends with their fiddles, accordions, guitars and bass drums, but at the last minute his bride . . . but that would be telling.

Included in the cast are musicians, singers, dancers, black face comedians, and last but by no means least, a gorgeous wedding party made up of our most prominent business men dressed in silks and satins, laces and frills . . . lipstick and mascara, perfumes and powder puffs, as well as guitars and harmonicas will be much in evidence on the stage on the evenings that "A Hillbilly Wedding" is performed.

Anyone who can sing, dance or play a musical instrument please register Monday evening, April 8, at the Tinley Park school with Miss Rothenberg.

Attend Ladies Nite At Chez Paree

Editor and Mrs. Wm. Semmler, daughters, Adeline and Ada, and Mrs. August Mesenbrink, the latter of Tinley Park, attended the "Ladies Night" dinner and dance sponsored by the Cook County Suburban Publishers at the Chez Paree in Chicago last Friday night. This affair is put on annually by the suburban publishers of Cook County.

Mokena Scout Officials Invited To Conference

Lone Scout officials of Mokena have been invited to attend the sixteenth annual conference of Great Lakes Region No. 7 Girl Scouts, at French Lick Springs, Ind., April 15-17. More than 600 leaders from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin are expected, according to Miss Sally B. Stickney, Chicago, regional director.

The Mokena Lone Scout leaders invited include Mrs. Elizabeth Cappel and Mrs. Minnie Nebecker.

Live exhibits in arts, crafts and nature projects, folk dancing, group singing, a reception for Mrs. Harvey Mudd, national president and Mrs. Paul Rittenhouse, national director, a barbecue luncheon in French Lick Springs resort park, the regional banquet and roundtable conferences feature the program.

Sessions will be held at French Lick Springs hotel and delegates will have the spa's extensive facilities for indoor and outdoor recreational and social activities at their disposal.

Mokena Board Meets Next Mon.

The Mokena village board failed to hold a meeting Tuesday night when Mayor Harry Mall and some of the village trustees were absent which resulted in no quorum, so the scheduled monthly meeting could not be held. The meeting will be held Monday night, April 8, at 7:30 p. m.

Named Enumerator

Mrs. Florence Steele, census taker for Mokena, began her enumerating work this week. She has about eight weeks in which to finish the job.

Sure Signs Spring Is Here

By The Office Boy
Well sir, Spring has come—as the poets say it. I've been mooching around trying to get the inside dope on it. I found robins and blue jays, pussy willows, and even the boss' dog shows signs of running away every chance he gets.

But here's the sure sign of spring: Hoboes!

Sunday morning bright and early I got up, and went mooching around town. Then I got an idea. I went down in the basement and grabbed on to a couple of big potatoes and went east of town a ways beside the R. I. tracks and built a fire to roast the spuds.

Well sir, pretty soon I heard the ominous tread of feet and I got real scared. I thought sure a band of hoboes was coming and were going to take my Irish spuds away from me.

Very cautiously I peered over the embankment, and there were three of them; namely, Walt Olson, Howard Beagley and Morry Larson.

They didn't see me so I decided to play detective and follow them. Well, I did, and they didn't stop until they got to Tinley Park. And then they caught the train back to Mokena.

Well sir, I figure that the aforesaid gentlemen owe me 13 cents 'rain fare for getting me in that predicament.

If they will pay up I won't say a thing about it to anyone.

Anyway the walk helped a couple of them to reduce. I'm not mentioning any names either.

PTA Carnival Big Success

The P. T. A. want to thank all its friends and members who so kindly helped to make its Third annual carnival which was held Saturday, a success.

The committee wish to thank all the mothers who donated toward the supper, also the merchants of Mokena for their donations. Several beautiful prizes were awarded to those present, as follows: guilt, Miss A. DeMask, New Lenox; floor lamp, donated by Public Service; Mrs. Nebecker; coffee maker given by Sipples store; Mrs. Knowles; table lamp, gift of the Boston Store of Joliet; Mrs. W. G. Olson. Set of dishes given by Goldblatt Bros. of Joliet, to Mrs. Morry Larson, and the usual beautiful cake made by the Tinley Park Bakery, to Master Thomas Fraher, of Chicago; the Up-To-Date Laundry order went to a party unknown.

Both young and old enjoyed the program which was furnished thru the courtesy of the Rainbow Bread Co. Mr. Skinner returned early from his vacation in order to put on his act and we want to thank him for making the program a success, and we hope he will return in the near future and show us some more of his tricks.

The door prizes were awarded to the following: Frances Robinson, Mrs. Ruth Ohr, Chicago, A. Heiman, P. J. Fraher, Chicago, L. Kohl, B. Benton, A. Lauffer and Mrs. W. Marti.

Chairman of Carnival, Mrs. R. McQuire.

Dedication of New Palos Village Hall Colorful

Palos Park had its big moment last Saturday when the beautiful $75,000 municipal building or village hall was dedicated.

The first part of the program was a patriotic program in front of the new building at 3 o'clock in the afternoon when the flag pole and flag was dedicated. The program opened with the Palos Junior girls singing "America the Beautiful". Following this the flag pole and flag were dedicated by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, U. S. A., and with the Your Buddy Post No. 1057 and Auxiliary in charge. Addresses were given by Past Department Commander Capt. Wm. Grace, Jr., and Vice Commander Earl Southard. The latter in a very stirring patriotic address pointed out how the various foreignisms are gaining foothold in our country and pointed out that unless America has a rebirth of patriotism like our forebearers possessed, we stand a chance of losing our priceless heritage of freedom.

The flag pole and flag were accepted on behalf of the village of Palos by Mayor George V. Hermanson. Miss Louise Kriz delivered a real rousing patriotic reading entitled "I Am an American." Next in order was the oath of allegiance by the Palos Troop of Boy Scouts, then a drill by the Lone Oak Troop, Girl Scouts. The program closed with a solo "God Bless America" by Miss Dorothy Robson.

The dedication scene was a very colorful one and in the warm spring sunshine it had something about it that tugged at your heart strings.

At four o'clock a very fine program was held in the gym when the dedication of the library by the Palos Woman's Club was the feature, with Mrs. Harry W. Crowley, Mrs. Arthur Lord and several other women as speakers.

An excellent program was put on by the school children and young people.

A "Country Fair" and refreshments was the chief attraction in the spacious basement of the new village hall.

Especially outstanding were the violin selections by Wm. Fuhrberg, Jr., with Glenn Hardine as accompanist.

In the evening the dedication exercises were held in the big gym with Mayor George V. Hermanson presiding. The program opened with the invocation by Rev. C. A. Rawson, "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung by Palos Park's popular singer Mrs. F. B. Hyink with Don Smith as accompanist. Mayor Hermanson gave the address of welcome following which the duties of the master of ceremonies was performed par excellence by Thomas Quin of Palos. A very pleasing and outstanding feature on the program was the newly organized choral group who sang many of the old time songs under the directorship of Glenn Hardine with Mrs. L. Itzel as associate director.

Addresses were made by Chas. E. Miner of the PWA and Congressman Edward A. Kelly. Both pointed out that WPA does more than only lean on shovels, for it was thru WPA the fine new building came into existence and provided employment for skilled workmen. A comparison was made by both speakers with conditions in Europe as compared to peace in this country.

The benediction was offered by Rev. J. L. Rooney of Orland Park. The program closed with the audience singing "America".

Frank King, Palos Park's popular radio man operated the public address system and did a good job of it.

We almost forgot to say that a number which took the house by storm was the rendition of a tap dance by Frank Wilson, same as he did 37 years ago when the old Palos club house was opened.

The rest of the evening was given over to dancing to the music of Johnny Jones, radio entertainer and his orchestra.

Local Candidate Attracting Attention

Some of our local people who have been giving some thought to our present political primary that is at hand have noted that the Frankfort-Mokena region has only one candidate in the primary contest and that to have some one they know in office it suggests to them that it might be a good idea, no matter what their political affiliations are, to vote for George C. Sangmeister for Clerk of the Circuit Court.

George has rubbed shoulders with most of us since we were kids and we can think of no one else we would rather see in the winning group.

Big Variety Show In Mokena Friday Night

Open New Frankfort Hall With Open House

The new Frankfort $12,000 village hall was thrown open to the public at a house warming Monday night from 7 to 8 p. m.

Just prior to the village board going into their monthly session Mayor George C. Sangmeister called on Chas. Pfaff, the general contractor, village Attorney A. H. Krusemark, Editor Wm. Semmler, and several others for remarks following which Rev. G. Gerhold, pastor of the St. Peter's Evangelical church gave a brief address of dedication and a prayer following which the board went into their regular session.

The new municipal building houses the village fire department, police station, council room and a community kitchen. The upstairs is also being finished off so meetings can be held there. Some of the organizations of the village will hold their meetings in the council room on a rental basis.

The new structure fills a long felt want. It is 48x58 feet in size.

The yard about the hall is to be landscaped and a neat lawn will also be maintained. Frankfort surely can be proud of their new hall.

Leap Year Dance Coming

Where will all the folks go Sunday night? Surely you haven't forgotten the Big Leap Year Dance to be given at the Matteson Village hall by the 4-H Sunshine club.

Are you lucky? Just wait and see. Valuable coupons are to be given absolutely free, beginning with a lucky number to every tenth person registering. These coupons can be redeemed right at the dance, so don't fail to be there.

And girls—Remember all the Leap Year Customs are to be observed so ask for your dates and dances. And boys! Just smile and say Yes. Don't forget the date. Everybody is invited.

Church To Raise Funds to Pay Debts

As the first step in a campaign of greater service to the Tinley Park community the Methodist church officially embarked Wednesday night on a campaign to assure the full payment of all indebtedness on the new church edifice. It is the plan of the congregation to be able to say that every cent of the cost of the new plant will be provided for before the end of this month.

Several of the men of the congregation met at Tinley Town Hall at 9:00 p. m. Wednesday and kicked off in their drive for victory. About a third of the cost of the new building has been paid. A quarter of the remainder has been provided for as of Wednesday night.

The members and friends of Tinley Methodist church are using a unique method to assure that their church will be free of debt. By this plan, subscribers are asked to save and loan to the church in accordance with their ability, with the assurance that their loans will be repaid to the designated beneficiary of the subscriber immediately in case of his death—or to the subscriber himself if living in 1975.

Horse-and-Buggy Customs Return As Britain Feels Pressure of War

By GRANT BUCKINGHAM

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

LONDON.—One year ago the average Britisher would have scoffed at the suggestion that he would soon discard his automobile for a horse-drawn dogcart.

Equally outlandish would be the suggestion that he'd return to the simple evenings before the fireside which characterized an earlier generation.

Today, after seven months of war, the Britisher is doing both.

Blackouts, gasoline rationing and other restrictions have shaken the years from England's shoulders and revived the national customs of two or three decades ago. What's more, England is not complaining. Some Lose, Others Gain.

The blackouts which descend at nightfall over London and other principal cities have created an entirely new technique of living, working and playing in which the gods of war have dictated almost every feature of the national existence. Many have lost by it, yet—paradoxically—others have profited. Moving picture theaters in metropolitan London are suffering the leanest period in their history because movie-goers hesitate to grope their way very far through inky blackness. Conversely, suburban theaters near the residential sections are booming.

How to spend time at home is an acute social problem for the English, who like Americans are accustomed to venturing abroad during the evening hours. Many old customs have been revived and the radio, once merely an idle-hour instrument, has become an essential feature of the evening's entertainment.

Shutters Must Be Closed.

Long discarded games like cards and dartboard have been resurrected from the attic and are enjoyed behind carefully sealed windows. Should light penetrate into the street and up to the sky, the British fear German air raiders might drop their deadly bombs.

Music, especially the home variety, has enjoyed a marked rebirth. Englishmen who can afford it are buying small pianos, and not the least to profit by this trend are the

Insomniacs Woo Sleep

With Army of Gadgets

NEW YORK.—It is estimated there are 630 sleep-producing items on the market to help the nation's 3,500,000 inveterate insomniacs go to sleep at night. They range from phonograph records to eye shades, the former being a recording of Handel's "Largo" in which a soothing speaker chants instructions on how "to experience the divine blessing of refreshing sleep."

So great is interest in this subject that this spring Columbia university is offering a course in "how to sleep" through Yogian methods.

Most numerous are the ancient home remedies for insomnia. One calls for going to bed wearing dripping-wet socks, the theory being that cold water draws blood from the head.

Benjamin Franklin slept in four beds each night, believing that a major cause of sleeplessness was the accumulation of body heat under the blanket.

correspondence school piano teachers. On the other hand, regular personal music instructors are suffering because children have been evacuated from the major cities.

Many family orchestras have been organized, and small groups gather each evening for family and community song-fests. Another old custom revived is that of taking turns reading aloud before a group gathered around the fireside.

Blackouts have boomed astronomy, because there is no longer any distraction from the shimmering glow of lights from nearby cities.

Is Silk Stocking Era Passing? New Hose Will Soon Tell Story

WASHINGTON.—About May 15 several million American women will begin testing a product on whose success or failure hinges the future of Japan's $100,000,000-a-year silk trade with the United States.

Stockings made of various natural and synthetic substances will go on the market then, designed to replace the unglamorous silk worm whose glamorous product has sheathed shapely American legs for many years.

There will be stockings made of coal, air and water—a product trademarked "nylon."

Others are made from rubber, some from resin and still others from cotton camouflaged so skillfully that it doesn't look like cotton.

If these substitutes are successful the $500,000,000-a-year American silk stocking industry will be reshaped overnight.

Can It Replace Silk?

Women are watching the experiment with mingled caution and interest, because no stocking material has yet been devised that will flatter their legs like silk. In 1938 it accounted for 88 per cent of all stockings sold. It has been at once the most luxurious and pestiferous item on milady's budget, for silk's cobwebby texture will snag and run at the touch of a rough fingernail.

Nylon, most publicized of the new products, was perfected in duPont laboratories and is now being tested under actual wearing conditions. To develop it chemists discovered how to mix coal with air and water, extruding the mixture into filaments stronger than steel and sometimes as fine as a spider web.

Sheerer Than Silk.

In many ways nylon resembles silk, overcoming some of its faults yet presenting a few new ones which silk doesn't have. Nylon stockings can be knit even sheerer than silk and don't snag so easily, but once they do the run develops more quickly. They won't spot when splashed by rain or snow because they're water-resistant. But by the same token they're not so comfortable as silk, feeling a bit metallic and cold to the skin. Since they absorb only 3 per cent of perspiration, they may also feel a bit clammy in hot weather.

So confident are its sponsors of nylon's success that factories costing $11,000,000 are now being built. About 4,000,000 pounds of the stuff will be processed this year.

Another synthetic stocking is that made of resin dust mixed with salt, and many evening invitations are accepted with the proviso that the guest will come "if there's a moon." So great is the night travel problem that most London business firms sent their employees home two hours earlier during the short winter days, getting them home before the blackout fell.

Though the blackout has apparently segregated and isolated family groups, other war measures have added to the community spirit. Many families whose children and grandparents were evacuated to the country have joined their remnants under a single roof, cutting their living expenses and enjoying each other's company during the long and cheerless evening.

SPEAKING OF HIGH STANDARDS—Miss Virginia Phelan, secretary of the National Research association, shown at the bureau of standards wearing a pair of hose which were to be tested on the new "snag resistance tester." The machine has a sharp point for snagging the stockings. Snag resistance is measured and recorded.

natural gas, coal and oil. The chemists who produced it expect to turn out 2,000,000 pounds a year for rope, fish nets, sails and women's hose.

Rubber Hose a Novelty.

Rubber stockings now on the market are knit in lacy meshes and have attracted attention as a novelty because they stretch to fit the leg snugly.

From the American farmers' standpoint, the most important hosiery development concerns cotton, which the government is trying to convert into a beautiful and popular stocking material. Directed by David H. Young, veteran hosiery designer, weavers have perfected 50 or more designs ranging from heringbone to stripes.

Getting Married Is Expensive, Even in Leap Year; Survey Places Cost of Church Wedding at $675

FRESNO, CALIF.—It may be leap year but that doesn't cut the cost of getting married.

According to Miss Lorraine Cederquist, student in the home economics department at Fresno State college, a modern church wedding in 1940 will cost the bridegroom a cool $406.75 and the bride $263.50.

Here's how she figured it: Bride's expenses: Dress, $25; veil, $18.50; bouquet for maid of honor, $3; five bouquets for the bridesmaids, $12.50; flowers for the church, $15; flowers for the reception, $10; candles, $2; wedding invitations, 200, costing $14; 18 wedding pictures, $40; gifts for waitresses and kitchen assistants, $9, and her trousseau, $75. She must also provide about $40 for food at the wedding reception.

Renewal of heavy spending is topic of White House discussion . . . Harrison and Bilbo bury the last senate hatchet.

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—Hot arguments at the White House in the last few days have revolved around the expediency of renewing heavy spending. President Roosevelt is willing, but wants the expenditures outside the budget. In short, he wants to stop federal grants to state and local communities, but is willing for the government to lend considerable amounts. Thus would be avoided the two horns of the dilemma which forced the drastic budget cuts in the budget message last January—increased debt limit on one hand and increased taxes on the other.

Important in these White House discussions were the future activities of the Federal Works agency. The rate of disbursement on its present program is $248,000,000 a month but will drop to $188,000,000 by December.

In this connection there was much discussion of the proposal of Sen. James M. Mead of New York, to make $300,000,000 available for long-term government loans for hospital, water and sewerage construction—about 20 per cent of PWA's 1938 program.

Sen. Robert F. Wagner of New York is willing to combine this with the proposed $10,000,000 hospital construction subsidy. This hospital item, incidentally, is the only exception the President seems willing to make in cutting off direct grants. He has been much interested in the problem of small communities which apparently cannot afford to finance their own hospitals.

Up on Capitol Hill there has not been an equal interest in the President's public health ideas, but for such a small amount, and in connection with the bigger spend-lead scheme, the reaction may be different.

NO CUT IN WPA FUNDS

Under the circumstances it is becoming extremely dubious whether congress will accept or that the White House will insist on a cut in WPA funds to one billion dollars for the next fiscal year, as tentatively proposed in the Roosevelt budget message. Already definite lines are forming in congress to boost this figure should F. D. R. himself not do so when he submits a definite estimate. Farm bloc members, pleased with the big boost in their appropriation, have been much in conference with the pro-PWA spending bloc, and an understanding is in the making.

The President probably took a good deal of quiet satisfaction in questioning congressional leaders about the tax situation. He asked if, in view of the boost of the farm appropriations, anything had been done about his suggestion for taxes to meet "extraordinary" national defense appropriations. The leaders told him they had been too busy with other matters to consider it. This was far from the truth, unless the word "consider" is taken to mean formal consideration in a committee. There is scarcely a senator or a representative who has not thought and talked a lot about it. And the answer is still "No." No new taxes will be imposed this year.

BURY LAST SENATE HATCHET

Feuds seem to be old-fashioned—threatening to pass into history—so far as the senate is concerned. With the cordial handshake and actual political co-operation between Pat Harrison and Theodore G. (The Man) Bilbo, the last of the hatchets between colleagues has been buried.

There is nothing resembling—for the moment at least—the old hatred between John Sharp Williams and James K. Vardaman. When the brilliant Williams spoke Vardaman would walk out into the cloakroom.

But now all is good humor and good feeling. In fact, if one expects the bitterness of some of the unpurged senators, notably Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith and Millard E. Tydings, against the President, there is a surprising lack of hostility so far as personalities are concerned.

The Harrison-Bilbo feud was perhaps the bitterest in the senate and the bitterest since that between the other two Mississippi senators of World war days, Williams and Vardaman. Close behind it, however, was the hatred, political and personal, between the "Boy Senator," Rush D. Holt, and his colleague, Matthew M. Neely, of West Virginia.

Captain Carl Norwood has been sent from his native England to the Kadur River district in India, along with his indispensable manservant, Moses O'Leary, soldier of fortune. Norwood's job is to survey the district to determine whether a valuable secret diamond mine belongs to the temple priests or to the ruler, the Maharajah of Kadur. Norwood calls on the British Residency to pay his initial respects. On his way he catches a glimpse of two women in a palace carriage, one of whom is young and beautiful. The other woman he knows to be the Maharanees of Kadur. O'Leary later tells him that the young woman is an American girl named Lynn Harding, who with her aunt, Mrs. Deborah Harding, is a guest at the palace. On a sightseeing tour Mrs. Harding sprains an ankle, and sends to the palace for aid. Prince Rundhia, handsome, spoiled nephew of the rulers, comes to her rescue, and takes her back to the palace where he meets Lynn. At a banquet that night in the palace, attended by Captain Norwood, Mrs. Harding takes one of the native doctor's pills, and becomes violently ill. She is placed in bed and arrangements are made for Lynn to move out of the quarters with her aunt and stay with the Maharanees. That evening Prince Rundhia attempts to make love to Lynn. She is unwilling to listen to him, and at the crucial moment Norwood appears on the scene, much to Rundhia's disgust. O'Leary has located the secret entrance to the diamond mine which is being worked by the temple priests. He takes Norwood to the mine, where death is narrowly averted when a live cobra is thrown in Norwood's face. Later Norwood visits the Brahmin priests, one of whom slyly slips a packet of diamonds in his pocket, unknown to Norwood. They are intended as a bribe. While Norwood is talking to Lynn the diamonds fall from his pocket. She notices them, and sees that he is surprised.

When Lynn glanced at Rundhia again, he had his back to the iron chest and he was staring at her, dark-eyed, not smiling—noticably not. Lynn accepted the unspoken challenge.

"I am sorry I let you kiss me this morning. I shouldn't have. It wasn't fair. It may have given you a wrong impression."

"The correct one being—"

"Oh, I was just being mischievous. It meant nothing."

"No?"

Rundhia eyed her for several seconds without speaking. She didn't feel afraid of him, but every fiber in her being was aware of crisis. Simulating calmness that she did not feel, she almost unconsciously moved the tennis racket from one hand to the other.

"Careful with that," he advised. "Put it down. You might break something. Come over here and see the emeralds."

She did not put down the tennis racket. That would have been obedience. She was obeying no one. It was not obedience that made her walk toward him around the overloaded table. She was walking straight into danger. She didn't deceive herself about that for a moment. Neither did Rundhia try to deceive her. Passion, confident and self-avowed, glowered in his splendid eyes. They were more arresting than the diamonds in the glass case. He looked bold, experienced, and much more masculinely beautiful than any human being she had ever met. She could feel her heart pounding. And she felt as sure of herself as if she were about to plunge into a warm inviting sea. She didn't hesitate.

"Lynn, I love you!"

"Weren't you going to show me the emeralds?"

Strange, how such tactics checked him. He behaved as he did in the garden the previous night when she mentioned the British Resident and Norwood. It seemed to make him nervous—to remind him of some insufficiency within himself. He glanced past her, at the eyehole in the door, then turned and opened the iron chest. He took out two handfuls of huge emeralds.

"Thousands," she said. "I suppose, are like me. What is it about precious stones that—"

"Thrills you? Sensuous things, aren't they? Feel their magic! Press them against your face! Enjoy them! One of these days they'll be mine. These emeralds are not State property. Lynn! Love me and I'll give them to you!"

"Thank you. I don't want them."

"Maharanees Lynn of Kadur! How would that be? Lynn—"

He moved both arms toward her. She poured back the emeralds into his hands. He had to take them, or they would have crashed to the tiled floor and that might have brought in the guard. Rundhia dumped them back into the chest. Lynn spoke before he could:

"Show me the diamonds. Captain Norwood—" Rundhia flinched. Lynn noticed it—"wouldn't show me those that he has."

Again she had sent Rundhia's thought off on a tangent. His eyes weren't steady any longer. Lynn followed up:

"They looked like big ones, but he's careless with them. If I hadn't noticed them fall he might have lost them."

"Diamonds?" said Rundhia. "In Norwood's pocket? When?"

"This morning. He let them fall while he was talking to me."

She was already sorry she had said it. Rundhia's eyes darkened with what looked like cunning. Lynn felt safer. Rundhia was running wild along a new line, for the moment. But Lynn felt guilty. She should not have defended herself at Norwood's cost. She hadn't meant to. But she guessed now that she had. It made her self-contemptuous and angry.

"Rundhia, what are you thinking about?"

"You! You only!" His eyes sought hers again. "To hell with Norwood! Lynn beloved, beautiful, glorious and—"

Lynn laughed. "Ask Auntie Harding what I am! She saw us!"

"Damn her, what do we care?"

"Captain Norwood also saw us."

"Any of his business?" Rundhia checked again. His eyes darkened.

"Look here, Lynn, I don't like to tell tales about people—"

"Why do it then?"

"You ought to know this. Norwood has been talking."

"About me?"

"Yes. While he was waiting to enter the audience room just now he asked a palace official where you slept last night."

"I don't believe it."

"The official told me."

"Captain Norwood never would do such a thing."

"Don't you know he's a spy for the British Intelligence? Such fellows haven't a scruple. Do you think I would lie to you?"

"Yes! I know you would! Let's go now, Rundhia. I've seen enough. I want to talk to the Maharanees."

"Merciless! You want to tantalize me? I'm already mad about you! Mad, I tell you! Lynn, do you believe this love that sweeps me like a storm can't conquer you? Do you suppose you can fire my veins, torture my heart—and not burn in the same ecstasy? I said burn! You are as passionate as I am! You are no cold beauty. Come here."

The Resident decided to take hatred by the horns.

She was against the table. He was pushing her backward. Things were falling off the table. He was kissing her. His face was buried in her hair. She freed her right arm—groped—seized the tennis racket and struck him hard in the face with its edge. Blood. Blood on her frock. Lots of it. Rundhia let go then. He found his handkerchief and held it to his face. Blood.

Lynn gasped, breathless: "What have I done?"

He didn't answer. With the handkerchief to his face he turned away from her.

"Rundhia," she said, "I wouldn't have hurt you for worlds."

"You have broken my heart," he answered.

"Rundhia!"

It was the Maharanees' voice. The great teak door had swung open. The Maharanees stood in the doorway, staring, with the guards behind her. She turned and dismissed the guards.

"Rundhia, what have you been doing? There is blood on Lynn's frock! Lynn! Darling, what has he done to you?"

"No harm," Lynn answered. She turned to hide the blood and the rip in her frock.

The Maharanees spoke to Rundhia, in his own language, vehemently, for about a minute. She was at no loss for words. She let him have it with the governed directed anger that cuts like a whip. Then, in English, for Lynn's benefit:

"Don't play for sympathy! That is no more than one of your usual nose-bleds! Let your doctor attend to it. Go!"

Rundhia strode from the room. The Maharanees came and put her arm around Lynn:

"Lynn, Lynn darling, I am too ashamed to tell you how I feel. Has he hurt you? Are you all right? I have told him I will neither pay his debts nor speak to him again until he has your full forgiveness."

CHAPTER VIII

Norwood could almost physically feel those diamonds in his tunic pocket. He should have asked Lynn not to mention them. He knew that. It was too late to turn back. And besides, she was having a row with her aunt and it wouldn't be cricket to butt in. He wished he hadn't seen Lynn kiss Rundhia. There were two things that Norwood ached to do that minute. One was to punch Rundhia. The other was to go to the temple and throw those diamonds at the high priest.

But that was just the kind of thing that Norwood could be trusted not to do. He knew exactly what he should do. But the Maharajah and his court were waiting to give him official audience. He glanced at his watch. There remained only five minutes in which to reach the palace in time for the appointment, so he mounted his horse at the gate and rode up the long drive to the front door, where he arrived exactly on the minute. The sals wiped the dust from his boots and he strode up the palace steps, expecting to get away within fifteen minutes. But time, in India, is one of lethargy's dimensions.

As a captain, Norwood wasn't entitled to be received from the throne, so the Maharajah sat on a gilded chair at one side of the room, with officials of only second-grade importance on smaller chairs to right and left. The chamberlain stood and read aloud from the instruction for the reception of British captains:

"His Highness now enquires after the visitor's health . . . The visitor responds . . . His Highness is pleased to welcome him . . . His Highness begs him to be seated . . . The visitor sits . . . His Highness . . ."

He was met and unfortunately detained by the Maharajah's minister of state and four other important members of the Council.

Silently cursing his luck, he did his best to escape. But servile wretches in silken liveries flung open the door of an anteroom.

"Look here, Diwan sahib, I'd be awfully glad to talk things over with you now, but I have urgent business at the Residency."

"Oh, but Captain Norwood, we could phone the Residency."

"That wouldn't help, I'm afraid. I'm not expected there. I need the Resident's advice."

"Ah, but Captain Norwood, is not our need greater? Documents, arguments, some witnesses, are ready now! His Highness has postponed important business to be present. He is waiting in the Council room. This boundary dispute is so urgent and its implications so important, that we feel our importance is justified. We beg you."

"Oh, well."

Norwood could almost feel those diamonds, burning him through the lining of his tunic pocket. Tension crept into his normally easy manner. The ministers detected it. Tension became mutual.

"I hope you'll bear in mind I'm in a hurry."

Two cars started from Rundhia's palace door within two minutes of each other. Having brought Rundhia's nose-bleed under control, the Bengali doctor drove away first, in the smaller car, for a professional call on Auntie Harding. If he had been going to his own execution, he might have looked equally comfortable. Perhaps he dreaded Auntie Harding's temper, perhaps something else.

Rundhia, a moment or two later, climbed into the new Rolls-Royce and laid his head back on the cushions, to prevent the nose-bleed from recurring. He was still bleeding slightly. He kept dabbing with a handkerchief.

"The British Residency!"

The Russian chauffeur drove like fury, but Rundhia made him slow down near the Residency gate. Though he affected to despise all ceremonial, Rundhia took cynical pleasure in making sure they should turn out the guard. He had phoned to say he was coming, so he was shown into the dim library, where the shades were drawn against the brazen sunlight, and the Resident didn't keep him waiting more than a couple of minutes.

"How are you, Rundhia. How is the new Rolls-Royce behaving?"

Rundhia dabbed at his nose with the handkerchief. "The car is quite well, thank you. How are you?"

They sat in armchairs eyeing each other in comfortless silence for nearly a minute. The Resident, who was feeling drowsy, tried to look firm, but fatherly and cordial. Rundhia was very good indeed at looking insolent without giving actual grounds for offense. He did his best, until the Resident decided to take hatred by the horns:

"Of course, I've no inkling of the reason for this unexpected visit, Rundhia. However, I'm glad you came. There are no witnesses, and, of course, this is off the record. I am taking the opportunity to remind you, once more, privately, that our treaty with this otherwise independent State of Kadur gives to His Majesty's Indian Government the right to veto the succession to the throne of any heir in whom His British Majesty's advisers may lack sufficient confidence."

"I have always been civil to you. But you couldn't like me, even if you tried, could you?" Rundhia retorted.

"I take exception to that," said the Resident. "I have my duty to consider, not my personal likes and dislikes. As a matter of actual fact, I could easily like you, if you would give me the opportunity. When you choose, you can be charming, and you are very intelligent. But on several occasions I have deplored your conduct and have had to speak to you about it. You have recently returned from Delhi. Rumors reached me. Without revealing confidences, I may say they were more than rumors. There are limits beyond which an heir to a throne should not trespass in quest of amusement—or for any other reason. I remind you that your cousin Jodha comes of age this week."

"Jodha is such a crock he couldn't cut up if he tried," said Rundhia. "One leg in the grave. The other's rotten. Why drag him in? He'll be dead soon."

"Failing acceptable heirs, the throne of Kadur can be escheated. I am warning you, Rundhia."

"Thanks! I have heard you. Now it's my turn and I'll warn you. It's what I came for. Who is this Captain Norwood? I notice you didn't present him at the palace. He came alone. Why? Are you keeping your hands off? Why does he carry diamonds in his tunic pocket? Why is he nervous when someone happens to see them? Is he one of your British gentlemen who never—never under any circumstances, never take a bribe? From a priest, for instance—to report, according to his honorable conscience, in the priests' favor!"

Italy Develops New Extensive National Highway System

If all the national, provincial and communal roads in Italy and in its empire were laid end to end they would circle around the world almost five times.

The highways in Italy, Ethiopia, Libya and the various island possessions total more than 110,000 miles. All of this mileage represents modern, wide, surfaced roads.

In Italy there are 105,000 miles of highways. Of this total 12,000 miles are national highways and the rest provincial and communal roads. There are 2,000 miles of completed roads in Ethiopia and another 1,000 miles will be ready for use within the next 12 months. In Libya there are approximately 2,000 miles of roads, 1,250 miles of which skirt the seacoast, extending from the Tunisian to the Egyptian frontiers.

Italy claims that its roads are the highest, the most beautiful and the most fascinating in Europe. The highest road climbs over the Stelvio into Switzerland. At its highest point it reaches an altitude of 9,050 feet above sea level. The most beautiful, according to Italian claims, is the winding, picturesque road in the pastel-tinted Dolomites. The most fascinating is the Gardeana, which runs along the west side of Lake Garda. It is a marvel of engineering, as most of its length is carved out of solid stone mountains and long stretches run through galleries.

Italy has eight superhighways (autostrades), reserved exclusively for high-speed motor traffic. They pass through some of the most beautiful regions in Italy and form direct connecting links between places of artistic and historical interest. Work of keeping Italy's highways up to date has been entrusted to the autonomous road board. Through its labors the greater part of the Italian road system has been reorganized.

The inconveniences of the old thoroughfares have been reduced. Dirt roads, which meant mud in rain and dust in dry weather, have disappeared, and road surfaces asphalted and paved. Dangerous curves and steep gradings have been eliminated. Trees and fences alongside roads have been painted with white bands to aid night driving.

AMOS PLEADS FOR JUSTICE

LESSON TEXT—Amos 5:1, 10-15, 21-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish judgment in the gate.—Amos 5:15.

Social justice, though much spoken about in recent times, has been the concern of right thinking men ever since sin entered the world and started man's inhumanity toward man. In the prophet Amos we find the eloquent and plain-spoken voice of one crying out against such conditions almost 800 years before Christ.

This lesson is one which is of utmost importance because in our present-day struggle with social injustice we have come to assume that it is primarily a political or economic question. Amos and all other Scripture rightly gets at "the focus of infection," which is sin. Sin in the heart leads to sinful actions, and these inevitably involve others, and thus bring about social problems. Let us learn from Amos to cure our social ills by bringing man to God.

I. Lamentation—in the Midst of Prosperity (v. 1).

From the little village of Tekoa and out of the wilderness in which he had been a herdsman came Amos, the man of God, to hurl his prophecy of disaster upon the heads of the complacent people of Israel and to take up a lamentation over those in Israel living in luxury and prosperity.

True it was that the common people were being ground under the heel of cruel oppression, but who cared about the poor as long as they could be squeezed for taxes to support the luxurious comforts and pleasures of the rich? A prosperity which does not reach the homes of the poor is not a real prosperity at all. When in addition thereto it encourages the "haves" to oppress the "have-nots" it becomes a grave danger, a real cause for lamentation.

II. The Reason—Sin Which Hates Reproof (vv. 10-13).

Sin is always a horrible thing, but when men who have fallen into sin are responsive to correction and ready to repent and forsake their sin, there is hope. The thing which made Israel's state so serious in the sight of God and of His prophet was that they had only hatred for those who were bold enough to reprove them or to live among them according to God's standards (vv. 10, 13). "They who will endure no criticism have slammed the door in the face of truth. When we get to the place where we cannot endure having our faults pointed out, we are on the way to moral collapse" (Douglass).

The sin which had thus hardened their hearts showed itself in social inequality and injustice which was built upon greed, oppression, corruption in the courts, etc. The shocking picture which Amos paints bears a surprising similarity to conditions in our world today. Let us face the problem and seek its solution.

III. The Cure—Seek Good Not Evil (vv. 14, 15).

God's Word condemns sin, but it always presents a remedy. In Christ we have the perfect, final, and complete answer to the sin question. Amos, speaking centuries before Christ, admonished Israel to repent and to turn away from the evil which they had cultivated with such assiduity and to be equally zealous about doing good, in the hope that "it may be that the Lord God of hosts will be gracious" (v. 15). How favored we are to be permitted not only to urge people to turn from evil to good, but to offer them the One who is the way, the truth, and the life.

Israel did not repent, but in folly depended on their religious ceremonies to satisfy an offended God. The prophet therefore declares that

IV. Religion Is Not a Substitute for Justice (vv. 21-24).

God had no pleasure in their religious observances and rites, because they were presented with unrepentant hearts and by hands which were soiled by the oppression of their fellow man.

Mark it well, God has no delight in the attendance upon church services, beautiful though they may be, does not listen to the sweet strains of sacred music, nor does He accept the rich "offerings" of those who live in unforsaken sin and who pay for magnificent church buildings and beautiful church services with money gotten by crooked dealings and social injustice. God is righteous and God's Word always cuts right through the hypocrisy of men. Let us heed the plea of Amos, that righteousness should run through our personal and national life "as a mighty stream," and then we shall be ready both as individuals and as a people to worship Him aright.

A Gracious Lord

His work is honorable and glorious; and his righteousness endureth forever. He hath made his wonderful works to be remembered; the Lord is gracious and full of compassion.—Psalm 111:3-4.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to perform their duties and other impairments from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

TINLEY PARK METHODIST CHURCH FORGES AHEAD

As the first step in a campaign of greater service to the Tinley Park community the Methodist church officially embarked Wednesday night on a campaign to assure the full payment of all indebtedness on the new church edifice. It is the plan of the congregation to be able to say that every cent of the cost of the new plant will be provided for before the end of this month.

Several of the men of the congregation met at Tinley Town hall at 9 p.m. Wednesday and kicked off in their drive for victory. About a third of the cost of the new building has been paid. A quarter of the remainder has been provided for as of Wednesday night.

The members and friends of Tinley Methodist church are using a unique method to assure that their church will be free of debt. By this plan, subscribers are asked to save and loan to the church in accordance with their ability, with the assurance that their loans will be repaid to the designated beneficiary of the subscriber immediately in case of his death—or to the subscriber himself if living in 1975.

Rev. Lawrence E. Weinreich and his men say, "We are in this thing to the finish. We are not going to let up until the final victory. We must have our new church completed, and for once the Ladies' Aid is not going to be expected to pay off the mortgage."

WOMAN'S CLUB NEWS

All members (friends) who wish to go to Oak Forest on April 12, be in the usual place—At Funk's store at 1 p.m. Bring one dozen cup cakes each and wrap them as we did sandwiches in previous years. Mrs. Arthur Wagner is the chairman. We must be loyal to her and so—we will be seeing you then.

Two car loads of members went to the dedication of the new community house and library at Palos Park on Saturday, Mar. 30. The flag raising ceremony was inspirational. After that there was a splendid program. Tinley Park club was presented with an individualized leather bound copy of the dedication program. It was going the rounds of the members at the last general club meeting.

Boy Scout News

On Friday evening, Apr. 6, the Boy Scouts of Troop 53, are taking part in the "Fathers' Night" program of the Tinley Park P.-T. A. They will open and close the meeting besides providing a little program.

On Friday night, Apr. 6, the troop is going to have a "Fathers' Night" of their own. Every father of a scout in this troop is urged to attend. The program is arranged for the fathers and a good time for all. Come and get acquainted with the boys. Mr. Boltz, head of scouting in this council, is planning to be there and talk to the boys and fathers.

Last Friday after their regular meeting, the troop had their monthly social. Weenies, buns and cocoa were served. Fourteen boys were in attendance.

Committee Chairman

In memory of our dearly beloved son and brother, William, who passed away one year ago April 7, 1939. The sun and moon are shining. On a lone and silent grave. It shines upon the one we love. But whom we could not save. Friends may think we have forgotten.

When at times they see us smile, Little do they know the heartache. That our smile hides all the while. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Peters and daughter, Velma.

TINLEY PARK AIR CADETS CORPS COLUMN

To the new members of the Tinley Park Air Cadets: Congratulations on becoming members of the Tinley Park air Cadets. You will be delighted to hear that the nation's greatest fliers such as Jimmy Doolittle, Jimmie Mattern and Col. Roscoe Turner predict that your corps is destined to be the greatest aviation your movement ever organized.

The names to follow have received their bronze Cadet wings and silver membership card. The committee wants you to wear the wings every day and be a credit to them! And be sure to keep your membership card in a safe place, because as you complete courses in the corps educational program, your grades will be marked on the back and the signatures of your examiners will be famous autographs, also the card will admit you free to various air races, model meets and cadet shows which are to be staged in Chicago.

The outlines of Corps courses which will give the cadets a ground school training in aeronautics is as follows: history of aviation, aeronautical terms, types of aircraft, air rules and regulations, piloting, navigation, meteorology, radio, model designing and building, engines.

Stewardess training for girls only, silver and gold wings are awarded on passing some of these courses.

Naturally there is going to be much more than just study for Tinley Park Times Cadets. There will be plenty of fun for every one. Read the report of the Corps activities in next Sunday Daily Times.

Our first cadets: Amelia E. Cavett, Robert Trevarthan, Glen Englehardt, Wesley Stemm, Kenneth Niemann, Fred Willman, Arnold Merow, Bill Mancke, Richard Mason, Cassin Zajak, Albert Henderson, Wilfred Bettenhausen, Eugene Wesolousk, Gerald Jacobs, H. Floyd Klepper, Otto Dean.

Make application for membership at Cavett's Drug Store. Jack Vilas is Chief of Staff, and Maurice Roddy is Commander.

SIGNED—The Committee appointed by the Tinley Park Civic Club and Mayor of Tinley Park.

Happy Landing—and if the parachute does not work, bring it back and we will give you another one.

Newspapers Endorse John Stelle For Governor

Scores of newspapers thruout Illinois have endorsed the administration of Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor. Editorial comment is some of the leading daily newspapers follows:

The DeKalb Chronicle—"John Stelle handled the task that presented itself in a manner that shows him is probably the biggest personality his party possesses in the state."

The Alton Evening Telegraph: "It was Stelle's first real opportunity to demonstrate the kind of a man he is and he just naturally conducted himself as a big man should. His career as Acting Governor will greatly increase the name and fame of John Stelle."

The Peoria Evening Star—"He made new friends and won high esteem of all citizens by the capable manner in which he discharged the arduous duties and handled a trying job with complete satisfaction to everyone."

The Decatur Herald—"He invited the Governor's most trusted friends to advise him and Governor Horner's policies were carried on as nearly as they could be learned. Smooth and unflustered execution of state business in the interval is a testimonial to Mr. Stelle's forbearance."

The Belleville New Democrat—"Lieut. Gov. John Stelle as Acting Governor for nearly five months has handled the executive affairs of the state in a decidedly capable and efficient manner and with creditable loyalty to his chief."

The Springfield State Register—"The loyalty of John Stelle to Governor Horner and his conformity to the Governor's policies when the latter was ill and incapacitated in Florida for many months, combined with Mr. Stelle's successful administration of several appointive and elective offices, entitles him to most favorable consideration for promotion from the office of Lieut. Governor to Governor."

Herman C. Grassle Conducts Active Campaign

Herman C. Grassle, candidate for republican nomination for County Auditor, has been conducting an active campaign during the past several weeks and since announcing his candidacy for this office.

In his talks and campaign Mr. Grassle has stressed the following points with reference to this office: The office of County Auditor calls for an experienced auditor of County affairs. That he has made a study of County finances; namely, the income and disbursements of County funds as provided by the statutes of the State of Illinois and thoroughly understands what is required of the County Auditor and his duties as provided by law. If elected to the office of Auditor, he will give his full and undivided time to the fulfillment of those duties. The audits required by law will be made of the various offices and their respective funds, being mindful of the rights and duties of these officers, whose transactions the Auditor is required to examine. His audits will also be as to amounts paid by the County for goods bought and sold, seeing that the prices paid are conformative with prices charged for like goods sold to outside firms and the general public. That he will insist on discounts of prices for goods furnished the County if the same is given to other firms. He will also insist that contract prices quoted the County be strictly adhered to. The income and disbursements of the various offices will be thoroughly and intelligently examined and reported in a clear and simplified manner so that any person will understand the real financial status of the County at such time.

Mr. Grassle has been soliciting the support of voters on foregoing facts and the further qualification of having had a practical business experience for over twenty-five years during which period he was in business for himself. He recently had an agency for auto trucks and engaged in that business until he announced his candidacy for office.

Reports from various sources appear to be favorable to Mr. Grassle as to outcome of his campaign.

Van Der Vreis and Arthur Sprague Popular Candidates

The 7th senatorial district, and particularly New Trier township, is fortunate in having as its representative in the general assembly as legislator of such superior qualifications as those possessed by Bernice T. Van der Vreis of Winnetka, a candidate in the April 9 Republican primaries for renomination.

During her six years' service at Springfield, Mrs. Van der Vreis has made an enviable record. She has shown remarkable perception, foresight and political acumen, never being rushed into support of legislation until fully conversant with its provisions. She has consistently supported good bills and opposed bad bills. In this process, however, she has won the respect of both Democratic and Republican sides. The Legislative Voters' league says that "her voting record is good," and she has earned a reputation for being "active, energetic and capable."

Mrs. Van der Vreis has ever been watchful over the interests of her district and the state as a whole. She has been especially interested in desirable school legislation and has been a strong opponent of bills designed to boost taxes. Believing that the solution of the unemployment problem is to be found only in encouraging industry, she has opposed bills to further hamper business. On this fine record she deserves the united support of 7th district Republicans.

Arthur W. Sprague of LaGrange, the other Republican representative from the 7th district, has done excellent work in his first term as a legislator, and proved himself a capable and valuable member of the assembly. He is fully entitled to Republican support.

Average Voter Appreciates Real Sportsmanship

There is still an inherent sportsmanship in the average voter which revolts at the spectacle of a state chairman of a major political party acting in a scheme to belittle the man out front. The chairman of the State Republican Committee in Illinois has undoubtedly lent himself to a scheme, born of desperation, to belittle Dwight H. Green, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

There is no fairness in these kind of attacks, nor is there even the semblance of truth in the charges leveled against this popular candidate. Voters of Illinois want their favorite candidates to win, but they want them to win fairly. They would not take kindly to a candidate who won by flinging mud at his opponent, something that Green has painstakingly refrained from doing.

Regarding the alleged proof of bipartisanship on the part of Green, one of the major points is that he is supported by certain aldermen whose secretaries receive pay from Kelly-Nash. As a matter of fact, hard fact, any informed person knows that such secretaries of aldermen are paid thru city funds, and merely because the mayor happens to be a Democrat is no indication that there is political significance in a purely perfunctory act. It would be like accusing Everett Dirksen, whose secretary is paid by the government, of being in league with Democrats; and just about as silly.

Chairman A. K. Stiles will have a lot to explain, for thus rather cheaply taking sides. Our idea is that eventually members of the Republican State Central Committee may recall him from that office for the obviously partisan act.

—Peoria Star, March 31.

Hayes Campaign Gaining Support

The support of Republican organizations throughout the 11th Congressional district in behalf of Hayes Kennedy, of Joliet and Harrison H. Robillard, of Elmhurst, for election at the April 9 primary as delegates to the National Presidential Nominating convention, was interpreted today as an attempt to remove these posts from the vagaries of party factionalism.

In a statement issued in behalf of the county chairmen of Will, DuPage, Kane and McHenry counties, Kennedy and Robillard were named as "men who have given unstintingly of their time and their energy in the interest of the Republican party."

In return, neither one has ever asked the voters for any office of personal advancement or remuneration, the statement read.

"We ask the support of Republican voters for the election of Kennedy and Robillard because they seek to go to the convention, not as a stepping stone for their own political advancement, but because they want to support the interests of the people thru the Republican party, and partake in the selection of candidates and the framing of a platform that can lead the G. O. P. back to state and national victory," the chairmen declared.

Green Tour of Will County Swings New Votes

The tour of Dwight H. Green throughout the county and the large demonstration in his behalf at Joliet last Saturday, has developed a conviction among the people to vote for Dwight H. Green this coming primary April 9th.

Dwight H. Green

Like Dewey in New York, Green has fought corruption in government. He almost defeated the Kelly-Nash machine in Chicago. Because of Green's popularity, the opposition has endeavored to tie him in with the Kelly-Nash machine, the very machine that he and the regular republican organization of Chicago nearly defeated. Green can be depended upon to carry the true banner of Republicanism in this state.

Every straw vote poll taken has indicated that Green is gaining in popularity. At no time has his percentage for the whole state been below 60 per cent of the votes cast. The people of this state want a man like Green. It is our job to enlist our friends in his behalf.

Dwight Green made the statement that he will be glad to meet with any recognized farm group to consider the problems of the farmers. Isn't that the way you would want a farm problem handled? He is that way about every problem. Do you realize how the 3 per cent Sales Tax is affecting your pocket-book. The farmer is not getting as much for his products as he would if the Sales Tax is removed. Dwight H. Green has pledged to do all he can to remove the Sales Tax on food. This will be a hard job, but he is used to difficult tasks. The Sales Tax on food has made it possible to keep many payrollers which are not necessary. Let's assist all we can to break this state of its shackles of corruption and over-expansion and Vote for Dwight H. Green, the man who can win in November.

COMMON SENSE

Fellow Americans of the Eleventh Congressional District:

For three terms I have served as your Representative in Congress.

My attendance and voting record during that period is SIXTH among the 435 Members of the House.

During my entire Congressional career, I have never dodged a vote or evaded an issue. The Congressional Record reveals my position on EVERY MAJOR ISSUE that has been determined by the House of Representatives since I have been a member thereof.

On that record, I seek re-nomination from Republican voters.

My opponent is an advocate of the TOWNSEND OLD AGE PENSION PLAN. He and his supporters have thus far offered no criticism of any vote I have cast on any other matter but seek to displace me because I voted AGAINST the TOWNSEND PLAN in the present Congress. It was rejected by the House of Representatives by a vote of 302 to 97. Was I, and were my 301 fellow Congressmen (Republicans and Democrats alike) wrong when we defeated that bill? You shall be the judge.

Upon the insistence of the Townsend advocates themselves, their bill (without a favorable recommendation from the Ways and Means Committee) was reported to the House under a gag rule that would not permit any amendments to be offered. It would have imposed upon the public a SUPER SALES TAX whereby food, clothing, fuel and every other article of human consumption would have been taxed over and over and over again to raise money for the payment of old age pensions up to $200.00 per month for each pensioner, regardless of need, regardless of income, regardless of wealth. What would the enactment of this plan have cost the taxpayers?

Our own State with its present THREE CENT sales tax affords a method of computation that is uncontradictable.

In Illinois alone (based upon the last Federal Census) the persons who would be entitled to pensions under the Townsend-Plan numbered 667,383

At $100.00 per month (ONE HALF of the maximum amount demanded in the Townsend Plan) the cost in Illinois per year would be $800,859,600.00

At $200.00 per month (the maximum amount demanded in the Townsend Plan) the cost in Illinois, per year, would be $1,601,719,200.00

The THREE CENT Sales Tax now in operation for State purposes in Illinois produces per year approximately $83,000,000.00

It doesn't require a mathematician to see that if a THREE CENT tax on every dollar purchase brings in only $83,000,000.00, it would require a THIRTY CENT tax on every dollar purchase to yield $800,859,600.00 (only HALF of the maximum Townsend Pension fund requirements).

It doesn't require an economist to foresee the effect of such taxation on the cost of living. If such a plan were in operation an automobile worth $500.00 would cost $650.00; a ton of coal worth $10.00 would cost $13.00; a suit of clothes worth $30.00 would cost $39.00; a pound of butter worth .50c would cost .65c; a pair of ladies' hosiery worth $1.00 would cost $1.30.

DO YOU WANT THIS

Do you want your earnings to buy 30 per cent less?

Do you want the tax collector to take one-third of your total income?

I favor ADEQUATE assistance for the NEEDY WORTHY aged.

I am for old age relief that will be PRACTICAL and WORKABLE — not IMPOSSIBLE or RUINOUS.

Record and Platform of Mr. Essington

An efficient and impartial administration is promised by Elmer R. Essington, Republican candidate for Coroner if he is elected.

A quotation taken from one of Mr. Essington's recent speeches was: "A Coroner owes it to the public he serves to always be available for service at all times and above all, not to display any partiality to any medical man or Funeral Director.

This excerpt speaks for itself. With the welfare of the taxpayers in mind, together with his long experience as a Funeral Director, Mr. Essington is a standout candidate and has the backing of Republican leaders.

Born in Plainfield, Mr. Essington is 47 years of age. He is the son of the late Albert Essington, and at present resides at 103 S. Eastern Ave., Joliet. Before entering the undertaking business, he farmed with his father near Plainfield for years.

Although he has never held a public office, Mr. Essington has been active in the Republican party for the past 26 years.

In his first venture in politics in 1928, Mr. Essington lost the Republican nomination for Coroner by a mere 700 votes, a remarkable run in spite of the fact that he campaigned on his merits and had no large amount of money to expend for workers and advertising.

Although a veteran Funeral Director and Embalmer, Mr. Essington does not contemplate entering the undertaking business if he is successful as a candidate for Coroner.

Mr. Essington's experience has taught him several things which he intends to carry out in the Coroner's office, should he be elected.

1. No partiality shall be shown to any funeral director of Joliet or Will County. A written order must be forthcoming from the family of the deceased designating the funeral director of their choice.

2. Bodies will not be allowed to remain on roadsides for hours or displayed to the curiosity of onlookers.

3. Mr. Essington intends to have deputy coroners situated about the county, so that prompt, attentive service can be given to each case.

4. The Coroner's office will remain open 24 hours a day.

5. Inquests will be held in the evening for the accommodation of working persons who are not paid when taking time off from their work.

6. Close cooperation between the various law enforcement officials is essential

7. Mr. Essington intends to run his office, and will not allow outside "Dictators" to interfere with him as a public servant.

8. The respect for the family of the deceased will be Mr. Essington's first concern. The grief stricken family can be assured that their loved one will not be the instrument of the coroner to gain publicity, with little or no regard for the adverse publicity the family may receive as a result.

Mr. Essington intends to exercise his own good judgment in protecting the rights of the voters who make it possible for him to be a public servant. He is in the race on the Republican ticket. The primaries to be held on April 9th.

A PROTEST

As a Republican precinct committeeman who received one of the many dictatorial documents concerning the endorsements of certain delegates which were mailed out in Will County last week.

I wish to protest against the arbitrary action of the Chairman of our County Central Committee in attempting to create the impression in the public mind that we had selected an "official" delegate from this county for the Republican National Convention. The precinct committeemen have never been consulted on any such a choice and we have never given Mr. Schupp authority to speak for us in this regard. Now is Charlie Schupp and his men behind the screen THE Republican party in Will County? What is the reason behind this action for him being afraid to consult the County organization on this matter. What effort for any man to think that he has a right to speak for all the Republican voters. The purpose of holding a primary is to give the people an opportunity to select their candidates so that our party may present our strongest men to represent us and that is in keeping with the best traditions of our Party.

Mr. James C. Bell has worked loyally for the Republican Party in fair weather and foul, and he enjoys the confidence of the people of our party as has been proven every time his name appeared on the ballot and he nor no other good man should be denied the right to serve our Party. Kelly and Nash might proscribe men in the Democratic Party, but Mr. Schupp should not be permitted to do so in the Republican Party and the vote on April 9th by the people will prove it.

A COMMITTEEMAN

To Vote on Community Schools

Sec. 89a of Illinois School law: "Upon the receipt of a petition signed by fifty or more legal voters residing in any contiguous and compact territory, whether in the same or different townships, described in the petition, the County Superintendent of Schools of the County in which the territory or the greater part thereof is situated, shall order an election to be held for the purpose of voting 'for' or 'against' the proposition to establish a 'Community High School'."

This office has recently received petitions which were filed by Attorney Oscar Larraway in behalf of the proposed Manhattan Community High School district and by Mr. Paul Gerhardt in behalf of the proposed Beecher Community high school district.

In compliance with Sec. 89a of the School law, we are ordering elections to be held to determine whether or not the voters in these areas described in the petition want these Community High School districts organized.

Komarek Endorsed By GOP Heads For Recorder

Possessing broad and successful experience in the field of business and finance, A. W. Komarek has gained wide support in his race for the Republican nomination for Recorder of Deeds in the primaries Tuesday, April 9. Mr. Komarek has for 20 years headed his own real estate firm.

From January, 1929, until his resignation in March of 1932 Mr. Komarek established an outstanding economy record in the administration of the Chicago Sanitary District. Revenues were increased and expenses reduced in the operating Mr. Komarek expenses of the Sanitary District during Mr. Komarek's incumbency. During that period Mr. Komarek deposited $454,472.15 to the credit of Cook county taxpayers and the Sanitary District for the years 1929, 1930 and 1931, in direct contrast to the deficit of $210,507.01 in 1927 and 1928.

Forty-four years of age, Mr. Komarek resides with his wife and three children in Riverside where he takes an active part in business, civic and social organizations.

Thirty elected township committeemen have coupled their approval of Mr. Komarek's candidacy with 46 of the elected Chicago ward committeemen. They consider his past record as a public servant and his experience in the real estate business qualifies Mr. Komarek for the office as Recorder of Deeds. His name will appear first on the Republican ballot April 9.

Here Is News For Newly Weds And Engaged Couples

Every newly married or engaged couple in this community, whose marriage or betrothal is announced in this newspaper, will be specially invited guests of the newspaper and of the National House and Garden exposition at the Fifth Annual Home show in Chicago's historic Coliseum, May 4 to 12, inclusive.

Invitations will be sent to the new homemakers and homemakers-to-be by John A. Servas, managing director of the Home show since it was founded. The invitations, each entitling one couple to free admission to the show will be mailed to the brides or brides-to-be late in April.

Mr. Servas explained that he is anxious to have the young married and engaged couples attend the show so that they may see at first hand the ultra-modern in home construction, home maintenance, home furnishing and home equipment.

"While the Home show will present a galaxy of features appealing to both young and old," Mr. Servas said, "the newlyweds, the young married couples and the betrothed are the people who will build the homes of tomorrow. They are interested in everything that is new and fresh and that pertains to the establishment of a home."

The couple in the Chicago area who have been married the greatest

Dividend Printing

► There is one kind of printing that you want—printing that pays a dividend on the investment.

► A letterhead with right sort of type properly balanced is a real business asset. It wins the approval of the person receiving your letter, and while he is in this frame of mind your letter is read.

► The same reasoning applies to any other job of printing. Neatness, the right weight and kind of paper, the color of the ink, the selection of the type, all play an important part in the production of dividend printing.

We are equipped to give you that kind of printing. Let us prove it to you.

The Crimped-Center Disk Guarantees Long Life

McCormick-Deering Disk Harrows

WHEN you buy a McCormick-Deering Disk Harrow you are getting a lot more than an ordinary disk harrow. The reason—because McCormick-Deering uses only crimped-center, heat-treated disks. The crimped center serves as a strong reinforcement or shock absorber for the disk at the center—the point of greatest strain. The crimp, being flat, permits the use of spacing spools with flat ends that are carefully ground. This provides an extremely close fit between the spacing spools and the disks, preventing looseness and breakage after a few seasons of use.

The next time you are passing our store stop in and let us show you how this one feature means years of satisfactory service. We can furnish you with whatever type of disk harrow you need—tractor or horse-drawn—from our complete line.

number of years and a young couple who have set May 4 as the date for their marriage are being sought by Mr. Servas to preside at the formal opening of the Home show on that day.

This dramatic gesture will epitomize the broad sweep of the Home show and its kaleidoscopic array of exhibits. The entire field of home-making will be covered. A variety of contests featuring hobbies, handicraft and domestic skill will be provided.

Home gardening will be stressed in magnificent gardens designed by Robert Bruce Harris, widely known landscape architect, which will occupy the main hall of the Coliseum and feature flowers and plants easily grown in the Chicago area.

The gardens will be overlooked at one end by the complete brick facade of an imposing Regency style home, designed by Olsen & Urbain, architects, fronted by a landscaped terrace which will be used as a stage to present entertainment during the show. The gardens will be provided with fountains, statuary, winding walks and restful seats. Shunning the strictly formal, the gardens will portray what can be done by the average homeowner to improve the appearance of his own yard and home.

Garner, Leader of Peace Bloc, Crystallized Anti-War Sentiment Throughout the United States

Washington, D. C. — Vice President John Nance Garner more than any other man changed the American attitude toward the European war.

When Mr. Garner returned to Washington for the special session of Congress on September 21, there was a sort of fatalistic feeling that somehow or another the United States, sooner or later, would get into war.

Travelers returning from Europe were quoted in Eastern newspapers as reporting that the most frequent question asked of Americans in England and France was "How soon will the United States join us?"

Garner never issues statements to the press, therefore his part in creating the new psychology may not be fully known to the country. But more than forty senators visited the Vice President on the first day he was in Washington.

Here is what he said to them:

"The United States is not going into this war. The people are determined that we shall not get into it. We in elective office have got to quit saying that we hope this country can stay out. We have got to start saying 'We are going to stay out.'"

He expressed that same feeling at the White House later in the day when Democratic and Republican leaders met with President Roosevelt. He expressed it again and again as Senators and Representatives called on him later. And in a few days the Garner sentiment was being echoed throughout Washington and it spread to the country.

Garner voted for war in 1917. He believed there was no way to stay out and he still believes there was no way to stay out. He insisted that his only son go to war then.

Typical school scene showing copious amounts of milk being consumed... all of which helps to keep growing boys and girls healthy and happy.

Foundation Increases Milk Consumption

Over 325,000 quarts of milk are consumed every day by Chicago school children, according to Carl F. Deysenroth, manager of the Milk Foundation, the educational foundation organized by members of the Pure Milk Association together with their cooperating dealers.

"In the four school systems, over half a million boys and girls consume a daily average of 2.45 glasses each," states Mr. Deysenroth. "and our studies show that boys drink just a bit more than girls, as their average is 2.7 glasses against an average of 2.2 glasses for the girls. Thus, as nutrition authorities urge all growing children to consume at least a quart of milk each day, it is possible to increase the amount of milk in just this one group more than 200,000 quarts daily—or 144,000,000 pounds of milk annually!"

The Milk Foundation has carried on educational work with teachers and students for several years and the number of requests for literature on milk has grown from 4,000 to more than 26,000 annually. Each school grade receives special material designed to fit in with the other subjects studied. About fifty different projects are furnished during each school year.

"This educational work is of the greatest value not only to the producers of milk, the dairy farmers, but to the public as well," says Mr. Deysenroth. "As the farmers sell more milk, their buying power increases and their community benefits. The consumer benefits too in the greater health derived from an adequate consumption of fresh Grade A milk."

The work of the Foundation is planned to reach all consuming groups as well as those of school age. Special work is being done to increase the amount of fresh milk used in infant feeding. Work with large manufacturing concerns employing thousands of men and women is a definite part of the education program and of course, the housewife comes in for her share as well. Annually, more than 14,000 women are reached directly through cooking schools sponsored by the Foundation.

Regarding the increase in milk consumption, Mr. Deysenroth has this to say: "Our records have shown increases as high as 85% in the amount of milk consumed by boys and girls following an educational project furnished by the Foundation. This indicates the splendid results possible in building for greater fresh milk volume with its resultant higher health standard."

Mr. Deysenroth hails from Columbus, Wisconsin, which is located in one of the largest milk producing counties in the nation. Upon leaving the University of Wisconsin, he specialized in food advertising, creating campaigns for many nationally known products. He has the distinction of having won the International Award for cooperative milk educational work for four consecutive years and has developed many new promotion methods for increasing fresh milk consumption.

You Get Your Money's Worth in Buying PRATT & LAMBERT PAINT AND VARNISH

Real economy in paint and varnish is not based on the price per gallon but on the amount of surface each gallon will cover and on the number of years of satisfactory service. Remember this when buying paint.

CHEAP PAINT IS EXPENSIVE

GOOD PAINT IS ECONOMICAL

It isn't the low price of cheap paint that's important; it's the loss of protection and cost of doing work over. Cheap paints are expensive at any price. They go to pieces quickly and often must be entirely removed before a good paint can be applied. Invest in good paint!

A P&L PRODUCT FOR EVERY SURFACE

For the outside of the house, for the interior walls, floors and furniture—for everything in and about your home, there is a Pratt & Lambert paint or varnish especially designed to insure the utmost in beauty, durability, economy and satisfaction.

We carry everything needed for your painting requirements. Whether it's a whole house or just a small chair, we shall be pleased to give you information and suggestions on any painting problem.

THE TYRANT'S HEEL

CCC to Celebrate 7th Anniversary

April 5th, 1933 the CCC was established, therefore the corps has completed its 7th successful year and the public of surrounding towns are invited to help celebrate the corps' 7th birthday to be held at Camp Sag Forest, Lemont, April 7th. It is the desire of the CCC to acquaint the public with the work projects carried on and supervised by the National Park Service, U. S. Department of the interior. The camp's principal project is the stone quarry on Route 54, a mile east of route 1-A and about 4 miles west of route 45. Stone quarried here is used by other CCC camps for project work, all for the benefit of the public, such as parking space, shelters, latrines, concession stands and many other useful projects. This camp has improved and increased the toboggan facilities in the Palos Hills Sports Area located on route 54. When this camp started work on the toboggan slides, there were originally only three slides which were inadequate to handle the public, there being as many as 10,000 persons there on Sundays. It was decided by the Cook County Forest Preserve District and approved by the National Park Service to build three additional slides. This was done and a new platform and control tower were erected, the starting gates now being electrically controlled by an operator in the control tower, which assures safety for all tobogganists. It was discovered that a great number of people could attend this winter sports area in the evening and due to the darkness, tobogganing was rather dangerous. This camp then installed a complete flood lighting system which turns night into day around the entire area. The employees of the National Park Service which supervises all project work, moved into Camp Sag Forest, Feb. 7th, 1938, moving from the abandoned Camp Swallow Cliff located at Palos Park, which was in operation from December 1933 until Feb. 7, 1938. All work is done by World War Veterans at this camp, a good many of them being skilled workmen. The work produced is to be envied.

In addition to the phases of the work project all visitors are welcome to inspect the Camp of the V-1675th company CCC. There are five barracks housing approximately 36 to 40 men each, a mess hall and kitchen, warehouse, bathhouse, workshop, office, canteen and recreation building, reading room and library building and First Aid or Dispensary room.

Drive out Sunday, April 7th from 1 to 5 p. m. There is no charge of any kind and free parking has been arranged. Refreshments will be served. You are most cordially invited.

Right and Wrong Way to Mark a Ballot

NOT TO BE COUNTED

TO BE COUNTED

If you do not mark your ballot correctly it will not be counted.

In every election many ballots are "thrown out"—that is, not counted—because voters were either careless in marking them or did not know how they should be marked. Michael J. Flynn, county clerk of Cook County has issued these diagrams showing the right way and the wrong way of marking.

Judges of election are required to "throw out" any ballot marked as shown in the Top Row of diagrams.

Ballots marked as shown in the Lower Row of diagrams are according to law and must be counted by the judges of election.

It is very simple Use the "X" mark only, and keep it within the squares before the names of candidates.

The dedication of the new Village Hall which was held on Saturday of March 30th was a huge success. The patriotic part of the program was held in the afternoon with the crowd gathering around the flag pole which was donated by the Palos Junior Girls. The Girl Scout Troop carried out a fifteen minute program during this time. The fourth and fifth grade girls did a tap dance number and the school children carried out a program. of the Palos Woman's club dedicated the Council chambers of the building. Gardinas were sold by the Palos Service League.

The main dedication services were held in the evening Mr. Thomas Quin as master of ceremonies. The Choral Mixed Chorus group, which was organized especially for the day, sang a number of songs. Mrs. Ben Hyink sang the "Star Spangled Banner" while the Boy Scouts stood at attention and gave pledge to the flag. The Boy Scouts also acted as ushers for the evening. Members of the Palos Civic league furnished the entertainment downstairs. Public dancing took place after the dedication services with Johnny Jones, radio entertainer and his orchestra.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Last Monday our meeting was opened by Bob Homerding. Business was discussed at this time in regards to the P.-T. A. program of last week when the boy scouts acted as monitors. Plans are going forward to promote the clean up campaign. After the business meeting we went into the hall an continued, this was done so that the civic club program could have the use of the gym for their practice. Later games were played outside in the cool night air. We ask that the town co-operate and help the boys get jobs in cleaning up the town. The money the boys get will go to the individual boy to be applied on a uniform or to be put in the bank.

ORLAND PARK

The annual Orland township spelling contest will be held in the Orland Park school on April 7th. Each school in the township may send two delegates to this spelling fest. The final contest for the entire county will be held in Chicago on April 27.

Principal Rawland of the Orland Park school has been ill the past week with the flu.

The Adult Bible class of the Orland Park Methodist church will hold their monthly meeting in the Creer hall next Wednesday night, April 10.

The P.-T. A. parliamentary class met in the Worth school Wednesday night.

The Orland Park P.-T. A. will meet next Thursday evening in the school auditorium. A president is to be elected and the changes in the by laws adopted.

A large number of Orland people attended the dedication of the new municipal building in Palos Park last Saturday.

The turkey dinner sponsored by the Orland Park Woman's club and held in the Methodist church parlors Thursday night was a very successful affair, and was well attended.

Mr. and Mrs. George Steinhagen attended a farewell party at the home of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Rollo in Blue Island Saturday night.

The annual school election will be held Saturday, Apr. 13. The term of Walter R. Schuessler, Jr., expires. The residents of this school district feel that Mr. Schuessler should be returned to office with a unanimous vote.

Last Wednesday a hearing was held before the Illinois Commerce commission in Chicago in regards to an extension of time on the Wabash viaduct in Oak street. The village was granted a two months extension. The committee representing Orland Park were George E. Gee, Jr., Walter R. Schuessler and Ray Doctor. The hearing was held in the office of Engineer Bartlett of the commission. A new bridge is also to be placed over Kean avenue, by the Wabash. As Kean avenue is to be widened this summer the new bridge will be somewhat longer than the present structure.

The annual town meeting of the town of Orland was held Tuesday, Apr. 2, in school district No. 136. The annual town reports of the town of Orland will be printed in full in this newspaper next week.

Static

Pleading politicians everywhere, Were mud-slinging on the air, Till Mother Nature quite emphatic, Silenced them with Sun Static.

Even stupid politicians know, It will be plenty hot below, And he who really owns the air, Sits in judgement over there.

Now mud was never an antidote, Nor will it gain a single vote, If your record would stand alone, You wouldn't need to blat and groan,

God wills that man stand united, So that wrongs all may be righted, 'Tis well to think this over twice, It's common sense and good advice.

For the Love of Pete

By LEROY W. GORE
(McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

THE slim, blonde girl stood in front of Frederickson's market writing diligently on a pad of paper. The broad-shouldered young man in the doorway of Lippincott's grocery across the street took careful aim with a large potato. The potato sent the pad and pencil spinning from the girl's hand. She gasped in astonishment, picked up the potato and scurried behind a post.

Papa Lippincott, waddling down the street from the corner cafe where Mr. Daniels of the Mammoth Retailers' Alliance had indulged in his mid-afternoon cup of coffee, laughed boisterously. "Serves her right!" he told Daniels. "That Paula Frederickson is a snooper like her old man. Always copying our prices off the windows so they can cut us a few cents."

Young Pete Lippincott started up the ladder in front of the store. "Very neat marksmanship, young man," the dapper Mr. Daniels approved. "What are you building here?"

The pillar of canned corn beside the entrance was already 10 feet high. "We have a canned goods special each Saturday, sir," Pete explained. "Dad borrowed this pillar idea from one of the city stores. It attracts a lot of attention."

Across the street Paula Frederickson was pulling apart the two halves of a potato, rejoined neatly with a match. On one of the halves was written: "Meet me at the Inn tonight, seven o'clock."

For twenty years Lippincott of Lippincott's grocery and Frederickson of Frederickson's market had faced each other across Main street without a good word. Both would probably have suffered a stroke of apoplexy if they had guessed the romantic inclinations of their children.

But Papa Lippincott was happy enough as he fixed his signature to a check for $5,000 and handed it to Mr. Daniels. The check paid for fifty shares of stock in the Mammoth Retailers' Alliance and, according to the contract which Mr. Daniels had just handed him, entitled Papa to "an additional ten per cent discount on all goods purchased from said firm."

"Let old man Frederickson snoop around after my prices now," Papa Lippincott exulted.

Mr. Daniels consulted his wrist watch. "I must be on my way. I'm due in Chicago tomorrow morning."

In the meantime Paula Frederickson had halved a potato from the Frederickson stock, and written her reply to Pete's message: "I'll be there, sweetheart." Across the street Pete had clamped a heavy basket to the ladder, and was transferring cans to the top of the pillar. It was Paula's intention to hurl the potato into the basket, but her aim was woefully amiss. The potato struck Pete squarely between the shoulders. He jumped, uttered a cry of pained surprise and the ladder scraped dangerously along the wall toward the carefully constructed pillar.

Mr. Daniels, choosing this unfortunate moment to make his exit, was buried beneath an avalanche of tin cans. When they removed him he was considerably bruised and quite, quite unconscious.

"I ain't blaming you for throwing that potato," Papa Frederickson was telling Paula next evening. "I wouldn't blame you if you threw a brick at Lippincott's dumb-headed boy, but why did you do it?"

Paula sighed wearily. "Just a silly notion. What were the damages to Mr. Daniels?"

"Three busted ribs and a fractured leg. He won't be out of the hospital for quite a spell."

Paula wondered what damages Mr. Daniels would claim.

But the most crushing blow of all was the way Pete had run out on her. She'd seen him hurry down the street even before the crowd gathered. Likely he was still in hiding, fearful that Paula might confess she hadn't thrown the potato at him maliciously, as everyone supposed. He needn't be afraid she would drag him into the case. She wasn't anxious to confess her love for a sneaking coward. But Paula couldn't swallow the lump in her throat.

And suddenly Pete was in the library. Pete! hatless, his hair mussed, but grinning widely.

Papa was on his feet, angry. "See here, young man. Ain't you Lippincott's caused us enough trouble?"

But Pete's eyes were on Paula. "Darling!" he cried. "You're a heroine!"

Paula stared at him, completely bewildered.

A flood of words tumbled from Pete. "I got suspicious of this man Daniels the minute I heard he'd nicked dad for five thousand. I hopped a plane to Chicago and talked to the president of the Mammoth Retailers' Alliance. Daniels is wanted by the police in dozens of places. He collected a half million this week with his stock-selling racket. And the reward for his capture is $5,000. Oh, Paula, if you hadn't thrown that potato—"

"Tell me, Paula," Papa interrupted, "why did you throw that potato?"

Paula was giggling hysterically. "For the love of Pete!"

Pretty Frocks for Your Lamp Shades

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

A CHANGE of lamp shades gives any room a lift, and here is a smart, new transformation trick. You start with a plain parchment paper or bristol board shade, preferably white; then you make a full skirt of some exciting fabric to cover it. By sewing snaps inside and also to the top of the shade, it is easy to remove these for laundering or cleaning.

at the top and bottom are favorites. Edges are pinked or machine stitched in heavy contrasting thread. Contrasting shirring holds the fullness at the top; and color is added by means of fancy braids, ribbons or bias tape, according to type. Sewing Book 1 and 4, contain directions for making a foundation frame, or you may use a shade that you already have.

NOTE: Each of the four booklets Mrs. Spears has prepared for our readers contains an assortment of 32 pages of curtains; slip covers; rag rugs; toys; gifts and novelties for bazaars. Books are 10 cents each—please order by number—No. 1, 2, 3, and 4—With your order for four booklets, you will receive a FREE set of three Quilt Block Patterns of Mrs. Spears' Favorite Early American Quilts. Personal Management of P. G. B. Morris

Dawn of Desire

By FRANK PEARSON

(McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

TO BE ushered by an office boy who was a model of decorum into DeWitt Wright's private sanctum high above Wall Street was to be immediately conscious of the severe setting that served only to emphasize the austerity of the great financier's expression, so frequently displayed on front pages and rotogravures. There was not a single soft or rounded line in the great, square office room, as there were none in the harshly angled features of DeWitt Wright.

The financier's stenographer-secretary was one of those young women who craved all the things of life that are both beautiful and secure.

She wanted marriage; a home of her own—and children to love and scold. Her name was Jane Warden, and there was something angelic about her.

DeWitt Wright was one of the most eligible and desirable bachelors in New York. Jane Warden was his secretary by reason of her skill and intelligence. How could she surmount this business barrier, and influence him to see her now and then through eyes that would reveal her desirability as a woman and a companion rather than a keen, efficient tool?

One day when Jane was particularly blue over the prospect of drab servitude that stretched before her, she chanced on the formal card of a well-known astrologer in one of the magazines. In one corner of the card appeared this simple line: "Let me help you."

Jane took fifteen dollars from her slim bank account and sought the sacred, incense clouded ante-room of society's pet astrologer. Jane was nothing if not direct.

"I don't want a signed, figured horoscope with all my likes and dislikes. I just want to know one thing—how can I win the man I love?"

Madame Francisco's reputation was not without foundation. She had helped many. She liked this girl's directness.

"Miss—Warden? Sit here in front of me. Tell me the date of your birth, and the hour as nearly as possible—then let me look at you a little while . . . two . . . three minutes."

Jane did as she was bid and the ceremony proceeded. Mme. Francisco's great dark eyes seemed to hold the girl spellbound; her magnetism enfolded Jane in a wealth of sure appraisal.

"You are not human enough," the woman said softly. "Stop being the cold angel your name suggests. Do some little human thing like—oh, anything that will show this man without words that he is always in your thoughts."

DeWitt Wright loved flowers. Aside from his pleasure in it he was vaguely aware that the rose in a slender vase on his desk, every morning fresh and fragrant as dew itself, was in some strange sense a message or an emblem.

But the financier was a busy man, not fashioned for the subtleties of romance, so morning after morning he remained in his state of passivity regarding the rose until the day when he chanced to arrive extraordinarily early. His office door was flung wide and his rubber soled golf shoes were noiseless on the wide cement approach.

What he saw from his threshold gave him pause. Jane Warden bending over his desk, with the early sunlight from a tall window unsealing gold glints within her trim blonde bob. She was arranging his rose in its receptacle with delicate fingers that, now he thought of it, seemed moulded for caressing. With graceful movements, utterly unaware of the hungry eyes that covered her, Jane stooped and patted into puffiness the flat little leather pillow she had but lately installed in the financier's rigorous desk chair.

Something far alien to his being, something queer and warm stirred in the heart of DeWitt Wright. He pictured this girl in his bachelor palace—arranging flowers, patting pillows, using the wand of youth to turn a solitary domain into an intimate home. Dawn of desire! Acknowledgment of a great lack! He retraced his steps far down from the door as quietly as any cat—then wheeled and entered his office with his accustomed authoritative tread. Jane was sitting ready for dictation—poised at her desk as usual. They exchanged the customary negligent "good morning."

At closing that evening, DeWitt Wright watched Jane Warden straighten her desk, cover her typewriter, sharpen a pencil for the next day, and don a smart hat and tailored jacket. Ideas clashed in his brain. Oh, to say something to her. For the first time in his powerful life words failed him. Sudden terror seized him as she spoke her bright "good night" and approached the door!

She must not go. She could not go. He must unloose the words from his lips; unroot his feet from the floor. DeWitt Wright actually lurched and stumbled as Jane's hand clasped the doorknob.

"JANE!"

Brilliant achievement from DeWitt Wright. But he could not have said more.

THE QUESTION THAT'S DRIVING US MAD

Problem Number One now facing all Americans is "How to Behave and What to Say" to the question, "Do you think Roosevelt wants a third term?"

The question is becoming irritating. It is driving many people mad to the point of violence. A survey by this department shows that more people go around asking "Do you think Roosevelt wants a third term?" than any other question, including "What time is it?" and "How is business?"

An Elmer Twitcheil Poll shows the following interesting standing of leading questions as of the past week:

"Do you think Roosevelt w. a. t. t.?" 11,546,789
"Did you ever see a winter like this?" 6,785,432
"Do you think things are any better?" 5,935,824
"Do you think there is any chance of peace by spring over there?" 5,436,890
"Am I lifting my head or is it my grip on the club?" 1,456,233

The interrogation is becoming a menace. It is getting on the nerves of America. The Twitcheil Poll showed that 550,634 persons interviewed last week favored bashing the head of the person asking the question; 134,588 favored throttling; 25,678 were for the use of firearms.

Mr. Twitcheil thinks there will be wide bloodshed if something isn't done about the matter. Always against violence, he believes the thing to do when anybody asks the question is to stare at the person intently and make no reply at first. When the person repeats the question he would answer: "Oh, I don't know. You've got to remember that the Yanks are a terrific hitting club."

But this course has its drawbacks. It foils the questioner, but is a strain on the other party. This column has asked some leading citizens what they now say when anybody chirps, "Do you think Roosevelt, etc."

John Hamilton: "I just say, 'I'm all right; how are you feeling?'"
Al Smith: "My answer is always, 'It depends whether it's on white or rye bread.'"

Nicholas Murray Butler: "When anybody asks me 'Do you think Roosevelt will run again?' I just yawn and say, 'I don't know; I'm a stranger here myself.'"

Congressman Dies: "I just ask questions, I don't answer 'em."
Greta Garbo: "When anybody asks me if Roosevelt bane run again I always say, 'No; Jimmy no want it any more; he is satisfied to stay in Hollywood.'"

So there you are.

HOLLYWOOD CHATTER

"Looka, Marge. Here's a picture of Queen Mary." "Whaddaya know about that! She looks just like Edna May Oliver."

"I hear M. G. M. is making a picture on 'The Life of the Bee.'"

"Yeah. But how are they going to work Tyrone Power into that one?"

Adolf, the dispatches say, has lost weight. That uniform he was never going to take off until Germany had won the war will present a serious problem. It's pretty hard to take in the slack of a pair of pants when they're still on the wearer.

When Hitler started the war he declared that he had put on his army uniform and would never remove it until Germany had won. It must be sticking to the skin a little now.

Mr. Chamberlain warns the British people that the war may start in earnest. We always had an idea this war might develop into a war.

THE REAL BLITZKRIEG

The United States has an airplane that will fly seven miles a minute and carries a cannon and four machine guns. If it only had a lady with an open umbrella it would terrorize the world.

A federal agency is investigating insurance companies. Insurance men must have slowed up a lot. If they were in old-time form they would have sold new policies to each investigator before the hearing had been under way a half hour.

SAUCE MUST COMPLEMENT THE FOOD

(See Recipes Below)

'Sauce for the Goose'

The function of a sauce may be either to accent or to soften a flavor; it may be used to enrich a food, or to moisten it; the sauce may be sweet or savory; it may be hot or cold. Whatever its purpose or classification, the sauce must be smooth in flavor as well as smooth in consistency. It should, in addition, offer contrast in color, flavor, in texture, or in temperature.

Sauces are "sweet" or "savory," depending upon whether they are used for desserts, or are served with meat, vegetables, egg dishes or macaroni.

French cooks, to whom sauces are sacred, use two basic recipes or "mother sauces" from which all their savory sauces are developed; no simple white sauce or sauce merely thickened with browned flour, for them!

To serve its purpose, a sauce must complement the food—rather than disguising it. That means subtle seasoning, and just the right consistency.

Plain white sauce—the standby of so many cooks—should seldom be served "as is." It's a foundation, really, which is quite likely to be flat in flavor, and very much too thick! Judiciously seasoned, it can be used in dozens of different ways. Flavor it with sharp, grated cheese, or add condensed tomato soup to it, for character; use a drop or two of Worcestershire or a half teaspoon of prepared mustard; or—and this is a secret we might well borrow from our French cousins—substitute soup stock for part of the milk, in making the sauce.

Orange Sauce.

1/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water
1/4 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon orange rind
1 tablespoon butter

Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add boiling water slowly to this dry mixture, stirring constantly. Place in saucepan and cook over low flame until mixture is clear. Remove from fire and add orange juice, lemon juice, orange rind and butter.

Delicious Sauce.

1/2 cup heavy cream (whipped)
1 egg
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon vanilla extract
Beat white and yolk of egg separately. Add sugar to beaten yolk, then add beaten egg white. Last of all add whipped cream and vanilla extract. Serve at once.

Italian Tomato Sauce.

Into a deep frying pan place a No. 2 1/2 can of tomatoes, 1 green pepper, chopped fine, 1 large onion chopped fine, 1/2 lb. ground round steak, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon tabasco sauce, 1/4 teaspoon ground allspice, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon black pepper, 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese and 2 cups water. Cook slowly for approximately 2 hours. Cover cooked spaghetti with sauce and sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese.

Easy-to-Make Hollandaise Sauce. Into top of double boiler place the juice of 1 lemon, 4 egg yolks, 1/2 cup butter and a dash of paprika. Beat constantly over boiling water until thick.

Barbecue Sauce.

1 large onion
1 clove garlic
1/2 cup catsup
1/2 cup Worcestershire sauce
1 No. 2 can tomatoes
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 cup vinegar
Red pepper, black pepper, salt and mustard—to taste
Cut the onion and garlic into fine pieces. Strain the tomatoes and add one can of water. Add the other ingredients and bring to a boil. Serve over any meat. This is also good for any fowl or game.

Cheese Souffle With Tomato Cream Sauce.

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 1/4 cups milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 pound sharp cheese
4 eggs

Melt the butter in a saucepan, add the flour and cook until frothy. Then add the milk and cook together until the sauce has thickened. Measure out 1/2 cup of cream sauce and set aside to use in the sauce. To the remaining cream sauce in the pan add salt, dry mustard and cheese and heat until the cheese is melted. Add beaten egg yolks. Cool. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into mixture. Pour into a casserole (about 8 inches in diameter) and bake 1 hour to 1 hour and 15 minutes in a very moderate (310-degree) oven. Serve at once and put a spoonful of tomato cream sauce over each portion.

Tomato Cream Sauce.

1 can condensed tomato soup
1/2 cup cream sauce (saved from first part of recipe)

Combine the tomato soup and sauce and heat, but do not boil.

Hot Butterscotch Sauce.

2 cups light brown sugar
1/2 cup coffee cream
1/4 cup light corn syrup
1/4 teaspoon salt

Blend all the above ingredients and place in saucepan. Cook slowly, stirring at frequent intervals, until mixture reaches the soft ball stage (235 degrees). Serve very hot over ice cream.

Are You Planning Your Spring Cleaning?

Before the housecleaning season arrives (and it's just around the corner!) be sure you send for a copy of "Household Hints." You'll find it a handy reference book when you begin to clean and polish and renovate the house. Just send 10 cents in coin to "Household Hints" care of Eleanor Howe, 919 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, and get your copy of this useful book, now.

'Busy-Day Meals.'

Are there busy days in your household, when there's very little time for preparing and serving meals? If there are, you'll be interested in what Eleanor Howe has to tell you about "Busy-Day Meals." Watch for her column next week—and for the menus and tested recipes you'll find in it.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

'Magic' Butter Rolls

Speaking of "busy-day" meals, here's a recipe that will make one and one-half dozen "magic" butter rolls in a hurry. This is what you need:

3 cups general purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup butter or other shortening
1/4 cup evaporated milk
1/4 cup water
2 cakes yeast
1 tablespoon sugar
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup nuts (cut fine)

To 1 1/2 cups flour add salt and shortening, combining as for pie crust. Combine milk and hot water. When lukewarm add the yeast and 1 tablespoon sugar, blend well and then stir into the first mixture, beating until very smooth. Cover and let stand 20 minutes. Then add the eggs and beat vigorously. Beat in the vanilla and remaining 1 1/2 cups flour. Stir until smooth. The dough will be stiff but slightly sticky. Tie the dough loosely in a square of cheesecloth and drop it into a pail of cool water (70 to 80 degrees). In about an hour the dough will rise to the top of the water. When it does, remove it from the pail. Knead lightly. Cut into small pieces, roll in sugar and chopped nuts. Twist pieces as desired and let stand for 5 minutes. Bake in hot oven about 20 minutes.

WOMEN

Here's amazing way to Relieve 'Regular' Pains

Mrs. J. C. Lawson writes: "I was undermanned, had cramps, headaches and backache, associated with my monthly periods. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for a while, gained strength, and was greatly relieved of these pains."

FOR over 70 years, countless thousands of women, who suffered functional monthly pains, have taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription over a period of time—and have been overjoyed to find that this famous remedy has helped them ward off such monthly discomforts.

Most amazing, this scientific remedy, formulated by a practicing physician, is guaranteed to contain no harmful drugs—no narcotics. In a scientific way, it improves nutritional assimilation; helps build you up and so increases your resistance and fortifies you against functional pain. Lessens nervousness during the trying period.

Don't suffer one unnecessary moment from such monthly discomfort. Get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription from your druggist. Discover how wonderfully it acts to relieve you of "Regular" pains.

Emmett McGrath Deserves Support

When a candidate for a political office has been re-elected for five consecutive times, it speaks well of the candidate and his record, as well as for the good judgement of voters.

Such is the record of Emmett McGrath, candidate for his sixth term as representative of the Seventh Senatorial District.

The reason Representative McGrath has been returned to office is: he uses his head when bills are to be acted upon in the Illinois legislature. Favoritism and interests of big business enterprises to put over certain legislative action to the detriment of the people in general, or against his principles. His makes a study of all bills and then votes upon them according to their merit. Pursuing this policy has established confidence among the voters in the Seventh Senatorial District, hence they send him back to be their spokesman in the State legislature.

When an applicant for a job in the commercial world is given an audience with a potential employer, the applicant always is asked: "What experience have you had?" No sane business man would hire an inexperienced person. So it is with political candidates. The people are his employers. He should have experience to carry out his work successfully. Representative McGrath has had 10 years experience, and is well qualified to be re-elected so that people living in the Seventh Senatorial District can be assured that their best interests alone will be advocated by him.

Can Change Party

Voters who wish to change their political affiliation from one party to the other in the coming primary may do so, it was pointed out, by politicians, if they voted within the past 23 months. This ruling, it is understood, applies to all precincts.
